CHARGED WITH WRONGFULLY USING MAIL IN FRAUDULENT LAND MATTERS

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Franklin Bull, Norman Cook and W. A. The land comprises railroad grants which agreement with the government required be sold to settlers at $2.50 per acre, but which was withdrawn by the road. The supreme court held that the government owned an equity above the $2.50. It is charged that the promoters promised full title.

His honor then suspended the sentence, delivering a stern rebuke and excellent admonition.

The young man, who had not hitherto been convicted of crime, so far as records are obtainable, was given an opportunity to escape prison sentence if he would keep out of saloons and conduct himself in an orderly manner, and obtain employment and repay the money which he obtained through fraudulent means.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH CONTRACT RELATIONS

(By Associated Press.)
DENVER, Sept. 25.—An invitation to John D. Rockefeller Jr. to meet with the representatives of the United Mine Workers and establish contract relations in the Colorado district, is contained in a statement issued by a special committee of the miners' organization.

The miners denied the Rockefeller statement that the Colorado Fuel & Iron company was unprejudiced against the unions, saying that 900 union members refused to work and many others were discharged on flimsy pretenses. They declare that in Rockefeller's trip of investigation he is not meeting with representatives of the men, but with an organization created by the head officials of the company.

The bottom of the shaft of the Gypsy Queen is now in a veritable network of stringers, all of which show sulphides. The management is not giving out assay values, but says they are looking more encouraging than at any previous time in the history of the property. The shaft will be continued down as fast as three shifts can drive it to the 1400 mark, where lateral work will be undertaken, the objective being to cut the ledge that was passed through in the shaft.

PROF. J. C. JONES IN SUMMER RESEARCH

EXTENSIVE FIELD WORK INVESTIGATIONS MADE NEAR MOUNT WHITNEY AND MONO LAKE

Prof. Jones of the geological and mineralogical departments of the Nevada state university, made several trips of importance during the past summer. His first was an excursion to Mount Whitney in company with Prof. Robin F. Chamberlain, son of Dr. Chamberlain, author of college text-books on geological subjects.

The two professors were searching for data on the mountain ranges in the great basin between the Sierra Nevada and the Rockies, says the Student Record. For years the problem of whether these ranges were folded, faulted or eroded has puzzled geologists. All the data which Prof. Jones and Dr. Chamberlain collected indicates that the ranges are faulted. A part of their tour included a trip up Mount Whitney.

BONANZA SHAFT NOW IN MATRIX TRACHYTE

AT 980 FEET A CROSSCUT WILL BE RUN TO EXPLORE THE COMPANY'S TERRITORY

The bottom of the shaft of the Tonopah Bonanza Mining company is showing values at last, quite low of course, but still encouraging. The assays show a preponderance of gold. Superintendent Haskell is confident that the bore has passed into trachyte. The silica runs 67 per cent. Iron, lime, magnesia and potash contents are low, but as it is the contact point, it is thought that they have been leached out.

A station for a pump is being cut at the 920 level. This is below the water plane, and it is thought that there will be dry sinking hereafter. At a depth of 980 feet a crosscut will be run south.
